This is the info I got from the raspberry commission.

You could try WSU's extension service. They may have more info for you.

Since we don't actually track acres in production we can't make that determination. But in general county averages have been around 3.5 tons per acre. I'd say that would be quite close for those three years. It was down in 2015 and up in 2016.

Hi Henry,

I have a customer, who is asking. Do you have an average yield per ac for 2012, 2013 and 2014 for Whatcom County?
