

Maybe you have already seen this one.

... apparently we (Canada) aren't the only ones paying attention.. The following message for Donald Trump, copied and pasted from Quora, was apparently originally posted in Spanish by Stefania Molina, a student at Padua University, Italy.

"So, you voted to build a wall... Well, my dear North Americans, even though you don't know much about geography, since for you America is just your country and not a continent, it's important that, before you lay the first bricks, you know what you are leaving out of that wall.

"Outside, there are 7 billion people. But since it doesn't sound too good to talk about people, we'll call them consumers.

"There are 7 billion consumers ready to replace the iPhone with a Samsung or Huawei in less than 42 hours. They can also replace Levi's with Zara or Massimo Dutti.

"Easily, in less than six months, we can stop buying Ford or Chevrolet vehicles and replace them with a Toyota, KIA, Mazda, Honda, Hyundai, Volvo, Subaru, Renault, or BMW, which technically far exceed the cars you produce.

"These 7 billion can also stop subscribing to Direct TV, and even though we wouldn't like it, we can stop watching Hollywood movies and start watching more Latin American or European productions, which often have better quality, messages, cinematographic techniques, and content.

"Even though it might seem unbelievable to you, we can stop going to Disney and visit the Xcaret Park in Cancún, Mexico, Wonderland in Canada, or Europa in Europe. There are other excellent destinations in South America, the East, and Europe.

"And, even though you don't believe it, there are better hamburgers in Mexico than those from McDonald's and with higher nutritional content.

"Has anyone seen any pyramids in the United States? In Egypt, Mexico, Peru, Guatemala, Sudan, and other countries, there are pyramids with incredible cultures. Look for where the wonders of the ancient and modern world are... None are in the United States.

"What a pity for Trump: he could have bought them and sold them!

"We know Adidas exists, not just Nike, and we can start consuming Mexican sneakers like the Panam.

"We know much more than you think. We know, for example, that if these 7 billion consumers stop buying your products, there will be unemployment, and your economy (inside the racist wall) will collapse to the point that you will beg us to tear down the fateful wall.

"We didn't want it, but... you wanted a wall, and now you'll have a wall.

"Sincerely,

The rest of the world

"P.S. Please, share this post. If you don't, nothing will happen: just many people won't realize this reality and the power they have to change it"